Dear Station Partner:

As a partner in ministry with Parenting Today’s Teens you’ve seen first hand the impact the daily and weekly broadcasts have had in your local community. All across the country, moms and dads are finding tools to rebuild their families through Mark Gregston’s compassion, candor, and humor.

Recently, CBN (Christian Broadcasting Network) News did a story on Heartlight Ministries, the counseling center behind the Parenting Today’s Teens programs.

It featured the ministry’s story, sound bites from teens, and beautiful landscape shots of the Heartlight campus.

See for yourself the incredible impact you are a part of through partnering in ministry with Mark and his team. Watch the video here: http://www1.cbn.com/cbnnews/us/2016/october/heartlight-ministries-a-refuge-for-hurting-teens

Teens need their parents now more than ever. But in their attempts to stay close, parents sometimes engage in ways that push their kids away. This November, Mark Gregston addresses timely topics that help knit families closer together.

Over the Thanksgiving weekend, Mark shares how moms and dads can show their kids how to have a heart of thankfulness by focusing on what they can give instead of what they “deserve.” One of Mark’s key phrases for parents is… “I owe you nothing, but I want to give you everything.” Leading by example, moms and dads can help their teens steer clear of entitlement.

But the learning doesn’t stop here – kids learn from their parents’ mistakes, as well! In Mark’s recent blog, Teens Can Learn By Your Mistakes, he gives additional advice about how parents need to be vulnerable in sharing their own failures. Parenting Today’s Teens reaches out to families with much needed hope and guidance. We are so grateful for our partnership with you!

Sincerely,

Jessica, Melissa and Jessie

Airdate: Saturday, November 12
Program: 10 Things Parents Do to Push Their Teens Away
Feature: Student Story: Kennady

In Ephesians 4, the Apostle Paul advises parents to not “exasperate” their children. Yet sometimes, we waffle between our opposing attempts to “be there” and to “let them be.” This weekend on Parenting Today’s Teens, Mark Gregston identifies ten parenting habits that push teens away … and offers ten healthy alternatives that encourage mutual closeness. Listen to Parenting Today’s Teens … Saturday/Sunday at (Time: ______) on (Station: ______)!

Airdate: Saturday, November 19
Program: Reasonable Rules for Teen Cell Phone Use
Feature: Student Story: Paige

Cell phones have become our teens’ primary connection to friends and family. But every parent knows that these mobile devices are both a blessing … and a curse! This weekend on Parenting Today’s Teens, Mark Gregston shares his views on cell phones and coaches parents on how to set up house rules to safeguard their teen. Don’t miss Parenting Today’s Teens … Saturday/Sunday at (Time: ______) on (Station: ______)!

Airdate: Saturday, November 26
Program: Changing the Attitude of Entitlement
Feature: Student Story: Izac

An “attitude of entitlement” has become a pervasive complaint about the next generation. So what can we as parents do to combat it? This weekend on Parenting Today’s Teens, Mark Gregston shares four ways that parents can counter feelings of entitlement by fostering a generous and grateful heart.
